ANNOTATION

Me, I'm dishonest. And a dishonest man you can always trust to be dishonest. Honestly, it's the honest ones you want to watch out for because you can never predict when they're going to do something incredibly...stupid.

I believe we all have seen this famous scene from Pirates of the Caribbean (The Curse of the Black Pearl) when Jack tries to rescue his partner, Will Turner, from Barbossa. Through all blockbuster Pirates series from 'The course of the black' which was released in the year of 2003 to the last one 'Dead man tell no tales'; Jack Sparrow is well-known for his outgoing personality. When we hear the name of this guy, the picture of a man who is caring about his friends and crew, a good swordsman, and quite hilarious even in the high-pressure moments comes to mind instantly. On top of that, he maintains a great level of optimism from the start to the end, which makes him a perfect protagonist and above-from-the-average actor. Also, he shows the great deal of traits of Sanguine from four different psychological temperaments.

Paragraph 1

Well, before diving deep into what Sanguine is and what characteristics it represents, it would be wise, first, to have a brief look at the concept of temperaments in psychology. The notion of temperaments was initially coined by the Greek physician named Galen in the 2nd century AD. Medieval philosophers further developed the concept. The temperaments were named for the four bodily fluids of ancient medical theory: sanguine, melancholic, choleric, and phlegmatic, with specific personality traits attributed to each. And now let's discuss the first one, Sanguine, in-depth. These types of people tend to be more optimistic than others and they always try to look at the bright side of life. In addition to this, talkativeness is also right in the centre of their personality, meaning that they are also keen to strike up conversation with anyone at any time. Another trait people with Sanguine temperament show is a high level of energy in their performances. This means that they appear to have a long-lasting battery for every task they pursue. If we want to list all the characteristics of Sanguine personality type, it will take ages to list them all. The bottom line here is to give the clearer image of these four temperaments to the reader with the help of different Avangard movies. Here in the case of Sanguine person, Jack Sparrow will be the perfect match for this because of the reasons given above.

Paragraph 2

Choleric is the second one in the quadrant of psychological temperaments. Choleric people are more prone to live independently without any means of intervention by others. They are those who are task-oriented and rather prompt in what to do. This temperament is clearly shown in all the series of 'John Wick' by a top-notch actor Keanu Reeves. Let's take 'John Wick' as an example. The flow of actions starts with a bunch of guys breaking up his house and killing his last gift from his recently deceased wife, a puppy. They don't know the fact that John Wick is a legendary hitman who is notorious for killing three men with a mere pencil. In return, John Wick goes on a journey to put a bullet on the mind of a guy who kills his dog. So, you may ask 'How in the world does it match with Choleric person?'. The first resemblance would be John Wick's ruthless determination to achieve his goal, in this case, to put an end on the life of the guy who did the same to his dog. If you watch this movie closely, you will come to realize that John Wick is a man of focus, commitment, and a sheer will (a task-orientation). A quickness can also be seen as a bridge that connects John Wick with this temperament. As you know, his fast-moving actions make him a quite challenging target to hit (a speediness).

Paragraph 3

We are all very familiar with the character who is totally relaxed and calm, who nearly shows no real sign of emotions even when is being faced by a death. He is charismatic and confident with unmatched level of IQ. Yes, we are talking about a master of mind games, orchestrating every piece of events behind the bloody scene to achieve his intended goals, Thomas Michael Shelby. He is a fictional character, and the fierce boss of a gang who sew razor blades in the peaks of their caps (Peaky Blinders). Plot of the movie begins with the arrival of Thomas Shelby and his brothers to Birmingham from British Army during World War I, as they plan to stretch the boundaries of their business beyond Birmingham and step on anyone who are on their way. From season 1 to season 6, although Thomas Shelby experiences several emotional damages as well as physical ones, he shows his calamity and unemotional, winning the respect of the audience and claiming to be the best of all time. From four psychological temperaments, Phlegmatic (which we are about to include after Choleric) suits the best here, as they are commonly thought to be calm and relaxed with an outgoing personality. Other than that, they love helping others with every tool they have got. Now, as far as similarities between Thomas Shelby and Phlegmatic person are concerned, confidence, calmness, and emotionlessness are the ones.

Paragraph 4

Finally, the last one in the temperament quadrant is Melancholic. Those who belong to this sort of temperament are widely known as sad and depressed.

Anxiousness is quite apparent in this personality type as well. Furthermore, they have a capability to be more creative compared to others. Hmm, which best-seller movies can we relate melancholic temperament? Well, the answer is that there is no one movie which comes with this temperament type. There may be found millions or billions of them as nearly all movies out there appear to dive into the bottomless water of misery and sadness before getting the very lights from the sun at the crack of dawn. Alright, let's take Brat Pitt's impeccable role in the movie called 'Fury', which was filmed a grizzled tank commander and his crew fighting their way across Germany during the last days of World War II. Don "Wardaddy" Collier (Brad Pitt) found himself and the crew in a desperate situation: A tank against lines of enemies, better armed and a lot in numbers, enters a deadly battle to the death. At some time in this movie, all characters get into the state of melancholy, pondering over what is going to happen after this war, lighting a cigarette just to get over what they see. Wardaddy, here in the movie, is hands down Melancholic for he experiences more horrors of war than anyone else there with his tank nicknamed 'Fury'.

Conclusion

So far, we acquired a specific knowledge of psychological temperament traits, which comes quite handy in assessing people's character on a day-to-day life. On top of that, being equipped with the information about on our own temperaments may open gates to discover ourselves from the inside, not the outside. We have seen many characters plus one of the temperaments attached to each. 'Did everyone see that? Because I won't be doing it again!' (Jack Sparrow)
