The greater the ability to adapt and adjust, the more successfully a government can address the security challenges posed by the changing contours of the international security space. Modernizing defense capabilities requires updating doctrine and protocol, but that alone is not enough; defense modernization is not a movement, but a process of continuous improvement. One of the current military strategic problems is to ensure stability, social welfare, opportunities for people to live peacefully, and, most importantly, our stability, sovereignty, integrity of our territory, independence. Since the days of the independence of the Republic of Uzbekistan, the head of our country has been paying a lot of attention to the reform of the defense sector, the formation of a professional Armed Forces, providing its employees with highly qualified personnel, qualified and combat-ready military personnel. At the same time, the requirements for training and the level of knowledge of the military have increased, the qualifications of specialists have increased and the professionalism has become a priority in the activities of the military organization. This requires a serious change in the content of the educational process in this field, and the methods of its organization. This is because when there is a threat, public safety, a reliable national issue, requires increasing security efficiency. The President of the Republic of Uzbekistan Shavkat Mirziyoyev gave a speech at the solemn ceremony dedicated to the defender of the Motherland and the 25th anniversary of the Armed Forces of the Republic of Uzbekistan: « ... training is appropriate for all higher military professors and teacher training institutions, including their leading foreign experts, large-scale training universities. Indeed, higher military professors and teacher training institutions play an important role in training future officers today, who are up-to-date, open-minded, have leadership skills and are fully mature. Because their knowledge and experience serve as a model for the younger generation and will serve as a program for the next stages of military life. The system of regulatory and legal documents aimed at ensuring the military security of the Republic of Uzbekistan was established. The Constitution of the Republic of Uzbekistan, laws, decrees of the President of the Republic of Uzbekistan, Government decisions and other regulatory documents are legal documents. Uzbekistan has been expanded and new tasks have been assigned as the leading center of the country's foreign policy. In addition to improving security-related institutions, the legal and political foundations of Uzbekistan's commercial activities, health and social support services have been improved. implemented a large-scale and ambitious modernization program in the social and economic sphere aimed at improvement. The government began a systematic process of economic liberalization, first of all, a radical modernization of the currency in 2017 and the privatization of commercial enterprises in 2018.

The impact of improved social and commercial policies was soon recognized and applauded by commercial interests and international organizations. In the context of ongoing globalization and changes in the entire system of international relations, the military-political situation in the world is increasingly characterized by the widening of the spectrum of threats and threats to international and regional security: the intensification of geopolitical conflicts, the dominance of strong approaches to resolving conflicts and crisis situations is increasing. January 9, 2018 A great step forward was taken when the Defense Doctrine of the Republic of Uzbekistan was adopted.
